The Music of Chance: On the Origin of Species from a Jewish Perspective

View PDF

Rabbi Dr. David G. Di Segni graduated in Microbiology and Medical Genetics from <st1:place><st1:placename>Hebrew</st1:placename> <st1:placename>University-Hadassah</st1:placename> <st1:placename>Medical</st1:placename> <st1:placetype>School</st1:placetype></st1:place> of <st1:city><st1:place>Jerusalem</st1:place></st1:city> and from La <st1:place><st1:placename>Sapienza</st1:placename> <st1:placetype>University</st1:placetype></st1:place> of <st1:city><st1:place>Rome</st1:place></st1:city>. He is Senior Scientist at the Institute of Cell Biology, National Council of Research, <st1:city><st1:place>Rome</st1:place></st1:city>. He also graduated from the Collegio Rabbinico Italiano, where he is currently the Coordinator and Talmud teacher. This article appears in issue 6 of Conversations, the journal of the Institute for Jewish Ideas and Ideals.<o:p></o:p> <o:p> </o:p>